Good morning

Further to our below correspondence, NHBC has advised that they did not release a new version of the standards in 2015 and, therefore, the relevant standards that applied to the Property in respect of the rendering at the time of construction were the 2014 NHBC standards.

I now attach a link to the 2014 NHBC standards. NHBC Standards 2014 compressed.pdf I have tried to send you a PDF version of the document, but it was rejected as it was too large. If you have any issues opening the link, please let me know.

Kind regards
Helen

Good morning.

Following on from my email below and, in particular, our response numbered 3 on the attached document, my technical team have confirmed that the relevant standards that applied to the Property in respect of the rendering at the time of construction were the 2015 NHBC Technical Standards. We have sought to locate a copy of this via the NHBC portal, but this only provides a copy of the 2025 NHBC Technical Standards and we do not hold a copy of the 2015 Standards due to the passage of time.

Kind regards
Helen

Good morning

Many thanks for your below email of 14 April 2025. We have responded to each of your queries in the attached document, and the corresponding documents are in the attached zip folder.

We have also reviewed your 15 April 2025 email with respect to the photographs the Customer has provided and comment on this as follows:

The crack has not "repeated" as per the Customer's email; this is the same crack in the render that the Developer is seeking to resolve. The Developer has proposed access dates to the Customer in order that its contractor can attend the Property and carry out the re-rendering works, which are being undertaken as a matter of goodwill. Please see our response to the Ombudsman's question 1 for further detail.

Please let me know if you require anything further to review the claim.

Kind regards
Helen

Good Afternoon,

The Ombudsman has reviewed the above case and has identified that some additional information is required to further their investigation as follows:

2. Please provide the Weber report and comments from the build manager referred to in your email to the Customer on 11 November 2024.

3. Please provide a copy of the relevant technical standards in respect of rendering.

4. Please detail the dates when scaffolding was erected and taken down at the property, alongside correspondence communicating these dates to the Customer.

5. You have referred to a request for third-party property to complete works on the path. – Please can you provide an update on the progress of any request to access this land, as well as any works underway or planned to continue work on the path.

6. You have provided a copy of your complaint's procedure – can you please provide evidence of if and/or, when this was supplied to the Customer.

Please provide your response by 5pm 18th April 2025 to this email address.

Your response will be crossed over to the Customer for comment.

Kind Regards,
